CHALLENGES

MHA faced several challenges before partnering with Omnilab Enterprise Solutions. The absence of a dedicated app made it difficult for customers to access and integrate products independently, creating a heavy reliance on the call center and increasing operational strain. They aimed to develop a seamless self-service platform that streamlined user experience and introduced new offerings, but balancing technical requirements with intuitive user flows proved challenging. Building a minimum viable product (MVP) within a tight timeframe added complexity, requiring expertise and adaptability. Additionally, the app needed to meet high customer expectations in functionality and usability, necessitating iterative updates and continuous collaboration to achieve success.

SOLUTIONS

Omnilab Enterprise Solutions developed an iOS and Android MVP in two months, enabling MHA customers to access products independently. They iteratively improved the app based on feedback, enhancing usability and adding features. By balancing user-friendly design with technical precision, Omnilab created a self-service platform that reduced call center reliance and streamlined operations.

Scalable Mobile Solution

Seamless Integration

BENEFITS

1

The app provided a seamless self-service platform, enabling customers to access products independently and reducing reliance on call centers.

2

Streamlined Operations

By integrating features and automating processes, the app optimized workflows, saving time and improving efficiency across the business.

3

Scalable Solution

The app's iterative updates and robust design ensured it could adapt to user feedback and business growth, delivering long-term value.

SCOPE OF WORK AND KEY DELIVERABLES

From the outset, we knew we needed a strong foundation, so we set out to develop a minimum viable product (MVP). Omnilab stepped up to the plate, and within just two months, they delivered an MVP for both iOS and Android platforms. It was impressive how quickly they were able to turn our vision into a tangible product. Since then, we've been iterating on the app, now entering our third or fourth version, and with each update, Omnilab has added more features that our customers truly appreciate.

As of now, about seventy to eighty percent of the design and functionality is complete. One of the most valuable aspects of working with Omnilab has been their ability to help us balance user flows with the technical direction of the project. They really helped us maintain momentum after we got off to a solid start, guiding us through the complexities of app development.

Project Feedback

Omnilab Enterprise Solutions Ltd. has delivered an app that has received fantastic ratings and downloads. The team has helped balance user flows with the technical direction of the project. Their experience, clear deadlines and expectations, and adaptability have led to excellent project management

Describe their project management. Did they deliver items on time? How did they respond to your needs?

From a project management perspective, Omnilab has truly impressed us. They come with a wealth of experience in app development, and from day one, we established clear deadlines and expectations. They not only met those expectations but often exceeded them. Their ability to adapt and help us refine our ideas was invaluable; they offered insights into what was feasible and sometimes even pushed us to think bigger. Their planning and optimization processes have been remarkably effective.

What did you find most impressive or unique about this company?

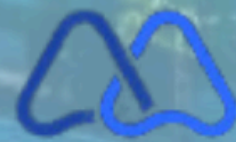

What stands out most about Omnilab is their exceptional expertise in app development. While we had some background in software, building an app from scratch was a whole new ball game for us. Their knack for defining the possibilities of the build made all the difference in turning our ideas into reality.

CHALLENGES

Marketeq Digital wanted to make their website mobile-friendly, it was getting outdated as we grew and more of their users were visiting on their phones. They needed a full refresh that was also easy for our team to manage so that's when they brought in Omnilab

SOLUTIONS

Omnilab started by working closely with Christopher and their web designer to really understand what they wanted. We made sure the new site was responsive and easy for their team to handle... halfway through, they switched from Drupal to HubSpot, and Omnilab adapted right away without missing a beat. they even made custom templates on HubSpot to match their ideas and worked on layouts that were both easy to use and looked sharp. They didn't just build what we asked for, they brought up new ideas too. they completely redid the navigation so it worked better on mobile. The site now looks amazing and works across all devices

The Client and Reviewer

Matt Desch, CEO, Iridium

CHALLENGES

The organization initially adopted a cloud-based payroll system for managing payroll but continued to rely on an on-campus SQL-based ERP system for essential operational reports. The lack of integration between the two systems created inefficiencies, particularly in synchronizing employee data. Ensuring accurate and up-to-date employee statuses across both platforms was critical to streamlining workflows and maintaining operational consistency.

SOLUTIONS

The Omnilab Enterprise Solutions team expertly handled the API integration to establish seamless data synchronization between the cloud-based payroll system and the on-campus SQL-based ERP. They developed a robust connection that allowed data to flow accurately and efficiently between the two systems, ensuring employee statuses remained up-to-date.

To enable future flexibility, the team created detailed configuration files, simplifying any future adjustments or expansions. Using a combination of IIS, SQL, REST APIs, and multiple programming languages, they delivered a tailored solution that streamlined workflows, reduced manual errors, and enhanced overall operational efficiency.
